VIPAccessEXCLUSIVE: Nadia Comăneci, Metta World Peace, Hunter Doohan, Brianne Howey, Tom Daley And More Celebrated GRAMMY Weekend At The 2023 Gold Meets Golden Event – Recap Here!

The spectacular event celebrated how the biggest names in the entertainment industry and the most renowned athletes inspire one another and gave these superstars a chance to join together for a truly remarkable occasion. Co-hosted by Nicole Kidman and Nadia Comăneci, this year's event was an extra special one commemorating Gold Meets Golden's 10th anniversary. Not only was the marvelous event a perfect way to have kicked off GRAMMY weekend and honor great celebrities and sports stars alike, but it also benefitted Angel City Sports, "an LA-based adaptive sports organization that provides access to needed equipment, coaching, and training for aspiring young Paralympic hopefuls, and produces a yearly competition for athletes with physical disabilities, the Angel City Games" (source: press release).

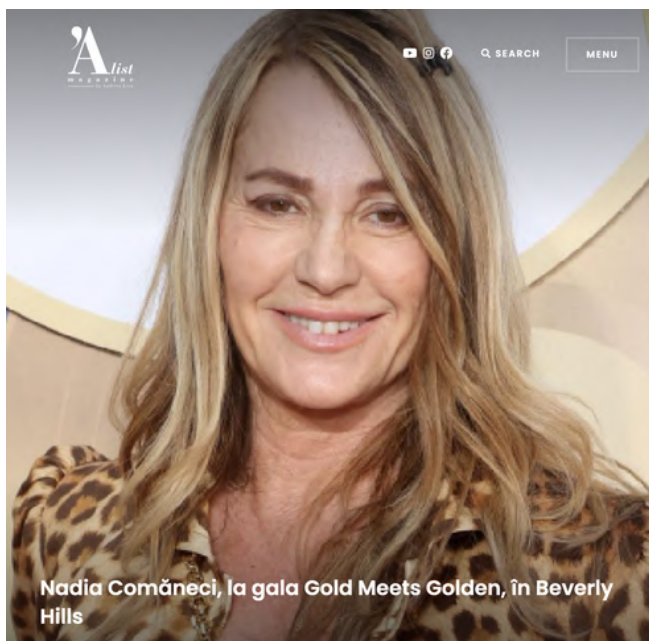

An abundance of celebrities and record-breaking Olympic medalists joined in on the fun at the event. Nadia Comăneci, Metta World Peace, Pepa of Salt-N-Pepa, Wednesday star Hunter Doohan, Tom Daley, Gus Kenworthy, Adam Rippon, Greg Louganis, Helio Castroneves, Ginny & Georgia star Brianne Howey, Trevor Donovan, Cheryl Burke, Missy Franklin, and many more showed their support at the wonderful event. Lance Bass and husband, Michael Turchin, also attended this year's celebration with their adorable children making their first ever red carpet debut.

Guests at the event were able to enjoy specialty cocktails and drinks, delicious hors d'oeuvres, ice-cream from Cosmic Bliss, mouth-watering cookies from Stella Barra, and terrific, gifting opportunities from brands including Nathan Sports.

'A LIST MAGAZINE

Gimnasta de zece, Nadia Comăneci, a luat parte zilele acestea la cea de-a zecea ediție a evenimentului Gold Meets Golden, care a avut loc în Beverly Hills, Los Angeles.

Nadia Comăneci, sportiva de origine română, prima gimnastă care a luat un zece la Olimpiadă, a participat la evenimentul dedicat platformei Gold Meets Golden, unde sunt reunite celebrități din diverse domenii, atleți cu performanțe remarcabile și artiști de la Hollywood cu scopul de a atrage atenția și de a sprijini cauze legate de lumea sportului.

Principalul eveniment Gold Meets Golden are loc de obicei la Los Angeles fix în ajunul începerii sezonului galelor de premii din industria de divertisment și ia forma unui brunch la care este celebrată intersecția Hollywoodului cu lumea sportului.

La ediția de anul acesta, Nadia Comăneci a fost invitată de onoare, alături de foști sportivi de performanță care au doborât recorduri. Gold Meets Golden își propune, anual, să strângă fonduri pentru organizația caritabilă Angel City Sports, prin care aceasta asigură echipament, asistență și training pentru tinerii aspiranți la Jocurile Paralimpice și organizează o competiție pentru atleții cu dizabilități fizice – The Angel City Games.

Și cum Los Angeles va găzdui Jocurile Olimpice din 2028, Hollywood-ul a primit deja o doză de "febră olimpică" și încearcă să intre deja în atmosfera de olimpiadă.

La ediția de anul acesta Gold Meets Golden, alături de Nadia Comăneci au mai luat parte vedete precum Lance Bass, Pepa (Salt-n-Pepa), Tom Daley, Greg Louganis, Ian Thorpe, Chloe Kim, Missy Franklin, Mallory Weggemann, Jordan Chiles, Cheryl Burke, Dale Moss, Janet Evans sau Adam Rippon.

Who just won the red carpet? It's gonna be Lance Bass' kids!

On Feb. 4, the singer and husband Michael Turchin attended the 10th anniversary celebration of Gold Meets Golden in Beverly Hills. They brought along two guests to make a most adorable—and accidental—red carpet debut: Their twins Alexander James and Violet Betty, 15 months, who also stole the show during the family's interview with E! News.

"It's just nice to be able to get out. We've never really been out too much with them, especially in a public forum like this. They've never done a red carpet before," Lance said of the twins, adding, "We didn't know there was going to be a red carpet! I would've dressed them up so much nicer."

Alexander, carried by the singer, was dressed in a white Red Hot Chili Peppers T-shirt and khakis, while Violet, carried by Michael, wore a black Rolling Stones tee and blue jeans.

Sharing his thoughts on fatherhood, Lance told E! News, "Being dads is the best thing ever. Everyone always told us but it is so true that this life is so much better with these kiddos."

10th Annual Gold Meets Golden Proves In Person Charity Events Are Thriving

 Susan Hornik | 8 days ago

Charity-based events which had to rely on innovative strategies during Covid19 are relieved to be back to in person for their fundraising get togethers.

Charley C. Walters, co-organizer of Gold Meets Golden, the annual event where veteran athletes from across the world mingle with Hollywood talent, acknowledged how thrilled he was to regain the support of sponsors, celebrities and Olympic and Paralympic athletes at the Virginia Robinson Gardens gala venue last month.

“While in the past few years, we’ve had to improvise with virtual programming, it was truly wonderful to return to an in-person event for our 10th anniversary, raising great awareness and funding to benefit Angel City Sports, a Los Angeles organization that helps support youths and adults with physical disabilities achieve their dream of playing sports,” enthused Walters, who co-founded and produced GMG along with Scott Orlin, actress Nicole Kidman and Olympic athlete Nadia Comaneci.

“Angel City Sports has been a perfect charity partner for Gold Meets Golden for several years now,” noted Walters. “Since its inception, ACS has provided the opportunity for hundreds of children in the disabled community to find an outlet in adaptive sports. We’ve seen first-hand how these introductions enhance their lives, as starting with Tokyo, some of the grown kids are now competing in actual Paralympic Games. It’s an amazing full circle moment.”

In addition, Franklin Sports provided equipment for lawn games, and Fabletics had yoga mats and branded 5 panel black hats to "strike a pose." United Airlines flew international athletes to the event in POLARIS class. And BOSE supplied new audio speaker and soundbar technology for a musical performance between Grammy nominee Shoshana Bean and multiple Grammy winner Stephen Schwartz, gifting attendees their earbuds.

Ottobock, a leading manufacturer of prosthetic and orthotic devices and world-wide Paralympic sponsor, was an integral part of the GMG event, as new title sponsor.

"Ottobock has been a global supporter of the adaptive sports community and an official partner of the paralympic movement since 1988," said Jan-Philip (JP) Rahmann, vp of marketing.

"For 104 years, we have made it our mission to help individuals regain their freedom of mobility through the use of our products and clinical services," said Rahmann. "We are proud to have had the opportunity to expand on our mission by partnering with organizations like Gold Meets Golden."

He continued: "At the event, we showcased some of the products that our athletes compete with at the games as well as products that are used for everyday use, like microprocessor knees and our new industry exoskeletons. We brought the future of adaptive sports with us too, a group of young and talented kids between the ages of 6 and 12, who showed all attendees that living with an amputation has little to no bearing on your freedom of mobility."

Rahmann added: "Together with our global ambassadors, who held a panel discussion with Greg Louganis on overcoming adversity under pressure, we were able to continue to raise awareness around adaptive sports and look to the bright future of the paralympic movement as it returns to Los Angeles in 2028."

Olympians such as Nadia Comaneci, Tom Daley, Greg Louganis, Ian Thorpe, Chloe Kim, Missy Franklin and Adam Rippon were all present. Ryan Chen, co-owner of Neuro Gum, who trained with the U.S. Paralympic team while holding a 2nd degree black belt in Kendo, also attended the event, along with celebrities like Cheryl Burke, Lance Bass and Gus Kenworthy.

Among the many sponsor perks for attendees during the day: Ride-sharing app Lyft offered a discounted ride to the charity event; Chinese Laundry/42Gold gifted custom gold shoes and totes, and Celsius sampled many flavors of their sports drinks.

"Celsius was a great new partner as they have a new 'tropical vibe' flavor that is a favorite amongst our celebrity and athlete hosts," Walters added.

First time sponsor Barbara Paldus, who runs CODEX Beauty Labs, enjoyed talking to guests like Olympic athlete Missy Franklin, about what her breakthrough company has been up to and gifting an assortment of product.

"Our new custom bio-testing combines the science of DNA with the essence of natural ingredients to create a perfect custom regimen for every type of human. Gold Meets Golden provided us with the perfect platform to roll out this technology, with a group of Olympians and Paralympians who compose the upper echelon of humanity. These are people who not only care about every ingredient that goes on and in their bodies, but have varying skin and biome conditions based on their sport and climate that need special attention."

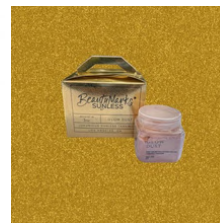

Gifting the coveted GMG gold gift bags, global shopping marketplace Fashwire championed a fashion show at the event, helping Hollywood celebrity, athlete and adaptive athlete attendees alike to look and feel their best throughout awards season.

"The @fashwire team took on an incredible @goldmeetsgolden event with an exciting fashion show and raising donations for @angelcitysports! Stay tuned for more fashion, philanthropy and fun from the star studded event!" they enthused on their social media. Their sister company, GlossWire, gave away an assortment of luxury beauty products.

The GMG golden gift bag also featured a variety of brands, including Nike (hat); Neuro Gum (Peppermint Energy & focus); Immunocologie (lava mask); Saint Jane Beauty (luxury skin ritual pure smoothing spf 30 sunscreen); Levain Bakery (double chocolate chip cookie) and WeSake (Japanese Junmai Ginjo sake owned by Brooklyn Beckham).

"Our gift bags have truly become one of the most coveted and GOLDEN gift bags of Hollywood Awards Season," enthused Shay Gibson, director of partnerships and gift bag organizer.

"This year the bag really reflected our Sports-meets-Hollywood theme including an equal amount of sporting equipment / athletic wear and fitness supplements, combined with all types of great & golden beauty products to help our attendees feel both fit and glam," she said.

Selkirk gifted guests and media their amped mid-weight fiber flex pickleball paddles. "#TeamSelkirk is honored to be showcasing all the pickleball action at the @goldmeetsgolden 2023 charity event, where money is being raised for @angelcitysports! What an amazing event to be a part of!" they said on their social media.

Herradura Tequila poured custom libations for guests. "Guests drank Herradura Ultra, which is a Cristalino tequila, aged but cristal clear, beyond smooth," said Mariana Esquina. "As one of the most historic and legendary tequila brands in the world, it felt great to partner with Gold Meets Golden to gather the best in sports and entertainment, supporting and celebrating extraordinary people."

Bestselling cookbook author Chef Katie Chin—who was just featured on The Kelly Clarkson show— was one of the caterers serving tasty items. "I was so excited to be part of this fantastic event! One of the appetizers I created for guests is tequila lime chicken, which is being infused by Herradura. It made this dish come alive!"

Also present was Chef Jazzy Harvey and Crenshaw Coffee Company's Tony Jolly, who served up a delicious & refreshing beverage & food pairing.

After a decade of growth and success for our event and charity, Cullen Walters was thrilled to announce that next year's event will go to Europe next year.

"The theme will appropriately be "Parisian 2024 Karat" to lead up to the 2024 Olympics and Paralympics in France, with events in both Los Angeles on the Globes weekend in January, and Summer in Cannes and Paris as a special send-off from Hollywood to the athletes of both Team USA and Team France."
